

ISO9001:2015 re-certification

Posted by Ben Mazur 12.07.2022

We are ISO9001:2015 certified for another 3 years

- ISO9001 is an internationally recognised quality management standard
- It places all of our processes and performance under the microscope
- It puts our clients and their businesses at the heart of everything we do
- It makes continual improvement our number one priority
- BSI, globally recognised for quality, safety and trust, have given us their seal of approval for another 3 years

ISO9001:2015 certified – again!

We are delighted to announce that BSI have certified our ISO9001:2015 Quality Management System for another 3 years, making this our 3rd successful certification. As well as major 3 yearly recertification audits, all areas of our business are externally scrutinised 5 times per year with management reviews, internal audits and annual surveillance audits. The scope of our system covers “new product development, R&D, electronic design and rapid prototyping” and our certificate FS 654990 can be viewed here.

Why does ISO9001:2015 matter?

An ISO9001:2015 certification proves that we put our clients front and centre in everything we do and ensures that all of our systems and processes are documented and followed at all times. It also demonstrates that we actively seek and listen to client feedback to continually improve our business, services and processes in line with our clients' needs. It is a mark of our commitment to continually asking "What could we be doing better" and taking prompt and proactive steps when we identify issues. We don't sit back, we don't rest, we embrace and respond to change and the results show; as we near our tenth birthday, it is clear we are building a streamlined, adaptable and resilient business.

Making excellence as a habit, not our words but those of BSI and a mantra we continue to aspire to. In 2016 BSI gave our quality management system their Mark of Trust and today, as tenacious as ever, we continue to display the BSI Kitemark™ with great pride. We are proud to work with BSI for their global recognition as one of the most experienced independent assessors of best practice and high standards for quality, safety and trust. This is underpinned by their role as the national standards body and through their prestigious Royal Charter. If you would like to know more about our commitment to quality then please get in touch.
